SENIOR CARE PROGRAM

Superior Animal Hospital is now offering a Senior Care Wellness Program for your senior and geriatric pets over 7 years of age. All senior and geriatric pets should get, at the minimum, a blood chemistry profile (BCP) with electrolytes (EC3+) and complete blood count (CBC) every year for early detection of health problems. Any abnormalities found may need further diagnostic testing.

- BCP: This blood test checks the kidneys, liver, endocrine function, protein levels and cholesterol.
- EC3+: This blood test checks sodium, potassium and chloride levels.
- CBC: This blood test looks for evidence of anemia, infection, bleeding problems and may signal certain types of cancers.
- Urinalysis: We can check the urine for kidney disease, diabetes, urinary tract infection and bladder stones.
- Early Renal Detection Screen (ERD): This screens for proteins being leaked into the urine by the kidneys which can be an early indication of kidney failure.
- Thyroid Test: This blood test checks for low levels of thyroid hormone in dogs and high levels in cats.
- Glaucoma Screen: Pressures in the eyes are checked and may detect early glaucoma.
- X-rays: We can look for changes in the heart and lungs, abdominal organs, as well as screen for tumors and bladder stones.

COMMON HEALTH CONDITIONS OF SENIOR PETS

Periodontal Disease: Tartar accumulation and inflammation of the gums may lead to pain, infection, tooth loss, bad breath, shortened life, kidney and heart disease.

Obesity: As your pet's metabolism slows down, weight gain can increase their risk of arthritis, diabetes, heart disease and back problems.

Endocrine Diseases: Aging pets often experience changes in thyroid, pancreas and adrenal gland function that can negatively affect the heart, GI tract, liver and kidneys.

Kidney & Liver Disease: Organ failure can lead to chemical imbalances, anemia, compromised immune function, blood clotting defects and altered mental capacity. Kidney disease is the leading cause of death in pets.

Heart Disease: Pets with heart disease can experience difficulty breathing, fatigue, coughing, exercise intolerance and lethargy. Medications may help make your pet more comfortable.

Arthritis: Pain from arthritis makes it hard for your pet to climb stairs, run or jump.

Loss of Vision: Older animals are at risk for cataracts, glaucoma and nuclear sclerosis (natural aging process that "clouds" the eye).

Cancer: Early detection of cancer may improve the prognosis with treatment. Many treatments are available and most have very few side effects.

Behavioral Changes: Pets suffering from Canine Cognitive Dysfunction Syndrome may appear disoriented, forget their housetraining, sleep more and interact less with the family.
